

a cotton-picking thing with $850,000. We all know that. Why, when we get government planners solving our problems, and Senator Chambers, and others, we always have to think in terms of millions. You see, that's what government does. It can think in terms of millions, but this is business. And business is going to finance the clean-up and they are willing, and you know, they somehow have been able to do things a little more economically than government planners. Senator Bereuter, this is a trashy idea that won't work? It worked in Washington, in fact, depending upon who you're going to believe, it worked better than the bottle bill, without all the implications and impact on business. Why don't you just once, Senator Bereuter, try working with business trying to solve problems, rather than come in with your government solution for a government agency and a government program to address every problem of mankind. Just give business a chance once, without imposing a big blanket of government regulations and restrictions on them. Without kicking them in the shorts. Give business a chance to clean up in an economical fashion which has already been proved to work in Washington and some other states, and admittedly, we aren't going to have the whole state cleaned up of little by next week Friday. Maybe not even by next year. But I'll tell you this: If we never start, we're never going to get there. We're not going to get there. If we do start, we'll be a lot further ahead a year from now than we will if we just call each other names.

PRESIDENT: Senator Dworak, for what purpose do you arise?
Senator Chambers, for what purpose do you arise?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: May I ask Senator DeCamp a question for clarification?

PRESIDENT: No, you ask the Chair, sir.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Under that formula, is it true that each city would get $1,471.16 to start a youth corp?

PRESIDENT: That's not an appropriate question after the close. The question then is the advancement of this bill. Record your vote.

CLERK: 25 ayes, 16 nays on the motion to advance, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT: The bill is advanced. Do you want to raise the call, Senator DeCamp? Or anyone? Senator Kahle moves that the call be raised. Record your vote. Record.

CLERK: 16 ayes, one nay to raise the call, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT: The call is raised. Senator Bereuter, for what purpose do you arise?

SENATOR BEREUTER: Point of personal privilege, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT: State your point to the chair.

SENATOR BEREUTER: I would like to state to the Chair, Mr. President, that I am a private businessman working for the private sector--

PRESIDENT: I will rule that point, sir.
